What's New At Summits!

An Un-"Bear"ably Cute Story!

We found this article from a Wisconsin news story while searching around the web looking for interesting beer news. If you like the story follow the below link to view the surveillance camera!

<http://www.fox21online.com/news/fox-21-exclusive-video-bear-caught-beer-cooler-released-unharmed>

By Beth Jett and photojournalist John Thain, FOX 21 News

HAYWARD - FOX 21 has tracked down new details and the rest of the story of a black bear that ran into a Hayward grocery store and hid in the beer cooler.

FOX 21 exclusively obtained the surveillance video of how it all played out, which is something the store is capitalizing on.

"He just knew where to go," laughed one woman outside the Marketplace Foods Store. "Knew where to go to have a beer." That's just one of many jokes coming out of the most exciting thing to happen in Hayward lately. Shoppers can see the pictures of what happened on the marquis outside the store.

"There it is," said shopper Terry Fairclough, looking at the pictures on the electric sign. "Unbearable!" Another caption reads, 'Stock up for all your hibernation needs.'

"I'm stocking my hibernation needs," Fairclough laughed.

It all comes after an unlikely shopper strolled into the store last Thursday night around

"When the bear crossed the doorbell and it went off, the cashier thought it was another customer until he came around the corner and ran into it," said Johansen. "He said the first thing that crossed his mind was 'I'm not checking that thing's ID'.

"The first thing I thought of was how much damage could be done?" said Officer LeBlanc. He was pleasantly surprised. The bear, thought to be a male yearling, about 125 pounds, walked right past the imports and blackberry brandy and didn't touch a thing. That was until he got to the walk-in beer cooler.

"His paws must have hit the cooler door and the cooler door went open," said LeBlanc demonstrating. "Then he went in." He said the bear moseied around the 34-degree cooler until he found a shelf about 10 feet up and that's where Wisconsin Department of Natural Resources Agents found him.

"The animal was sitting peacefully in the back of the beer cooler," said Matt McKay, a DNR agent called to the scene. The bear was eventually tranquilized, and safely carried out of the cooler. As it turned out, the bear was taken to the local DNR office in Hayward where it spent the night. Then, first thing Friday morning, it was released into the wild totally unharmed.

"He looked healthy and he just was glad to be outta that situation, I'm sure," said McKay. Store employees were relieved at the outcome. "This bear didn't do anything wrong," said LeBlanc. "It was a great ending. Nobody was hurt. No damage was done.

Authorities said the bear came into Hayward earlier that day and climbed a tree, where authorities monitored him until dark. They say that's when he came down and some children chased him into the store's parking lot. And, by the way, no--the bear did not drink any beer.

Beer Geek

- The pursuit of beer changed the course of humanity forever in 5000 BC. Neolithic people abandoned their wandering lives for farming, to grow grain for brewing beer.
- In 1116 BC, Chinese imperial edict stated that heaven required people to drink beer.
- The Egyptian pyramids were built on beer. Stonecutters, slaves and public officials were paid in a type of beer called 'kash' – which is where the word 'cash' originated.

Bourbon Stout Yam Waffles Recipe

<http://homecooking.about.com/od/breakfastrecipes/r/blbreak1.htm>

Stout beer gives a wonderful yeasty flavor to waffles while the yams add a gentle sweetness. These are great for breakfast, but also good for dinner as a change of pace.

Ingredients:

- 1 Tablespoon baking powder
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 3 eggs, separated
- 1/2 cup milk
- 1/2 cup Stout
- 2 Tablespoons bourbon
- 1 cup mashed cooked yams, cooled
- 2 Tablespoons melted butter
- Pinch each nutmeg, cardamom, and ginger

Directions

Sift together the flour, baking powder, and salt. Beat the egg yolks and mix them with the milk, Stout, bourbon, yams, melted butter, and spices. This Week in History - 10/19

Oct 19, 1781 Hopelessly trapped at Yorktown, Virginia, British General Lord Cornwallis surrenders 8,000 British soldiers and seamen to a larger Franco-American force, effectively bringing an end to the American Revolution

On October 20, 1947, the notorious Red Scare kicks into high gear in Washington, as a Congressional committee begins investigating Communist influence in one of the world's richest and most glamorous communities: Hollywood.

Oct 21st On this day in 1959, on New York City's Fifth Avenue, thousands of people line up outside a bizarrely shaped white concrete building that resembled a giant upside-down cupcake. It was opening day at the new Guggenheim Museum, home to one of the world's top collections of contemporary art.

Oct 22, 1962 In a televised speech of extraordinary gravity, President John F. Kennedy announces that U.S. spy planes have discovered Soviet missile bases in Cuba. These missile sites--under construction but nearing completion--housed medium-range missiles capable of striking a number of major cities in the United States, including Washington, D.C. Kennedy announced that he was ordering a naval "quarantine" of Cuba to prevent Soviet ships from transporting any more offensive weapons to the island and explained that the United States would not tolerate the existence of the missile sites currently in place. The president made it clear that America would not stop short of military action to end what he called a "clandestine, reckless, and provocative threat to world peace."

Oct 24th On this day in 1901, a 63-year-old schoolteacher named Annie Edson Taylor becomes the first person to take the plunge over Niagara Falls in a barrel.
